Prvi broj Acta Historiae Medicinae Stomatologiae Pharmaciae Medicinae Veterinae koji je izašao 2013. godine nakon preko dve decenije pauze je proizvod njegovog velikog entuzijazma i energije uprkos godinama i zdravstvenom stanju.

Prof. Dr. Slobodan Đorđević
(1921-2012)

As one of the founders of Association of scientific societies for history of sanitary culture of Yugoslavia, prof. dr Slobodan Đorđević merited establishment of journal Acta Historiae Medicinae Stomatologiae Pharmaciae Medicinae Veterinae, published by that association since 1961. He was editor and board member of that journal all the way to 1991, when association dismembered together with the former state. Despite his age, prof. Đorđević managed to organize in 2010 Scientific society for history of sanitary culture that made continuance of former Association 19 years later. The first issue of Acta Historiae Medicinae Stomatologiae Pharmaciae Medicinae Veterinae published in 2013 is a product of his huge enthusiasm and energy despite his age and withering health.

Slobodan Đorđević was born in Valjevo on April 24 1921. He finished prime school and gymnasium in Belgrade, where he enrolled Faculty of Medicine in 1940. He delayed his studies due to war in 1941, and in 1944 he joined partisan forces and took part in final liberation operations. Demobilized in 1945, he continued his studies in 1946 and attained his degree in 1950, with average mark 8.5. During his studies he was noticed by ORL professor Milan Fotić, so even before he finished his studies he joined ORL clinics of Faculty of Medicine. In 1951 he became resident doctor and assistant to prof. Fotić. In 1952 he was named assistant professor. When professor Fotić was forced to free position of clinics manager, Slobodan Đorđević was named acting manager until 1955. He was assistant and deputy manager of ORL clinics from 1955 to 1961. In 1959 he was habilitated with paper "A contribution to thyreopathic dystrophies research, considering damages to cochlear and vestibular apparatus" and was named docent of Faculty of Medicine. In 1962 he has named honorary docent of Faculty of Dentistry in Belgrade, in 1964 a honorary docent of Faculty of Medicine in Niš.

In 1961 he made research study in Poland, and in 1964 he improved his knowledge in French clinics (Paris, Bordeaux, Lyon, Nancy, Strasbourg, Montpellier). He received in France a master degree with his work "Foreign bodies in otorhinolaryngology and their complications" and was named foreign assistant professor at the University of Paris. He further specialized in Austria, Greece, Italy, Czechoslovakia and Spain. When he was named associate professor of Faculty of Medicine in Belgrade in 1966, he had 97 scientific papers published. Besides Europe, prof. Đorđević worked in Africa from 1972 to 1978. In Niamey (Nigeria) in 1975 was named university professor and manager of ORL clinics. After that, he managed ORL clinics in Abidjan (Ivory Coast). He returned to Belgrade in 1978 and was pensioned, but remained very active in different vocational associations, some of which he founded.

Professor Đorđević published more than 190 scientific papers in international and national journals. Most of them are related to ORL, but significant portion discuss medicine history and sanitary culture. He also published two textbooks, and "Practical otorhinolaryngology for medicine and dentistry students" was published on three occasions (1968, 1973, 1975). He was reviewer, editor and board member in several national and international journals: Acta Historiae Medicinae Stomatologiae Pharmaciae Medicinae Veterinae, Acta Medica Iugoslavica, Bulletin Scientifique, Symposia Otorinolaringologica, Srpski arhiv za celokupno lekarstvo, Medicinski glasnik, Medicinska istraživanja, Kardiologija, Nauka i priroda etc.

For his long-term contribution prof. Đorđević received numerous awards and acknowledgments: Medal of work with golden garland, Medal of work with red flag, plaque from Association of medical societies of Yugoslavia, charter from History of sanitary culture Society, plaque and charter from Serbian medical society, charter from Association of descendants of participants in liberation wars 1912-1918, charter from ORL clinics in Belgrade, diploma "Ante Šercer" from ORL clinics of Zagreb university, plaque from Faculty of Medicine in Belgrade, plaque from Faculty of Dentistry in Belgrade, plaque from Faculty of Medicine in Niš, etc.

He was a member of numerous expert societies and associations: Yugoslav association for otorhinolaryngology, Association for plastic and reconstructive surgery, Association for allergology, Association of cancerology of Yugoslavia, Association for cervico-facial surgery, Association of medical societies of Yugoslavia, Serbian medical society where he chaired medicine history section. He was a member of Serbian literature cooperative, Red cross, Matica srpska, Association of French students and Association of scientific societies for history of sanitary culture of Yugoslavia.

In times when zealous students of medicine and other faculties cut ties and throw hats of reactionists, professor Đorđević wore bow-tie like his histology professor and famous erotologist Dr. Aleksandar Đ. Kostić. That courage and endurance he kept until the end of his life and brought new life to history of sanitary culture in second decade of 21st century. By death of professor Dr. Slobodan Đorđević at the age of 91, Scientific society for history of sanitary culture lost its president, founder and one of the best medicine historians in this region.
